FIFTY YEARS AGO IN

William Watkins, Captain of the Forty-seventh Kentucky, was robbed of $1,000 yesterday.

There were seven packet arrivals yesterday and twelve departures—St.
Louis, Memphis and New Orleans two, each; Nashville two and Pittsburg two.

Colonel James A. Wilson, Provost Marshal for this district, has issued an order revoking all furloughs and ordering both officers and men to rejoin their commands immediately.

Miss Emily Burnett, daughter of the famous humorist, made her debut at Mozart Hall, rendering several songs with guitar accompaniment.

Gold was quoted in New York at $2.42 with sales slightly higher. The local grain markets were firm. Wheat $2.25, corn $1.25, oats 78 cents, and flour $9.25.

BOVINE HYGIENE.

All this fuss about the foot and mouth disease appears to have a beneficial effect on the personal habits of cows. Reports from Chicago show a surprising improvement in bovine cleanliness. The gain is particularly noticeable on the farms belonging to meat packers.

The cows owned by Arthur Mucker, of Armour & Company, have taken to the foot bath. No member of the herd goes to bed or gets up in the morning without this delicate ablution. Joseph M. Cuddey's cows, we are told, go still further, and brush their teeth twice a day. At least, they submit to the ceremony. A revolving brush has been rigged upon an old horse-clipping machine, and every cow walks up like a lady and has her molars scrubbed with an antiseptic solution until any germ clever enough to escape annihilation may be said to deserve his or her immunity.

Mrs. Scott Durand adds to the effectiveness of the pasteurizing campaign by thoroughly disinfecting every human being that has anything to do with her cows. This doubtless has a peculiarly refining effect upon the character of the lady cattle. What cow has not, at some time or other, been offended and shocked by the presence of a stableman in a soiled collar, or a milkmaid with unpolished nails.

C. D. Shellman has a plot of ground gathered ninety-five gigantic pumpkins for the winter, besides using a number for the table and giving to friends.

we will miss that ordeal.

Our popular and esteemed fellow citizen, Mr. W. H. Miller, reports a gourd vine 140 feet long in this way: The original stalk separated and one part went south and the other went north, and from tip to tip was a distance of 140 feet. He plucked from this gourd vine 101 fine long-handled gourds.

MOTORCYCLE NOTES.

Lieutenant-Commander Max B. Horton of the English automobiles is an enthusiastic motorcyclist. And in times of peace he spends much time on the two-wheeler.

Jos. Esler of Quincy, Ill., the motorcycle globe trotter, has not given up the 30,000-mile world tour which he had planned for this fall, but expects to start out as soon as the European troubles are settled.

"I now get more business in this territory than anyone ever did before," says Elmer Riley, a salesman of Atchison, Kas. Riley has recently purchased a motorcycle, and says that on it he can make as high as thirty towns a day.

The Canadian government has ordered 500 American motorcycles to equip the dispatch riders of the troops they are raising to send to England.

Peoria, Ill., is planning to leave nothing undone to land the 1915 convention of the Federation of American Motorcyclists.

Bob Perry, the winner of last year's 200-mile motorcycle race at Savannah, is expecting to again take part in a similar event on Thanksgiving day.

LUKE McLUKE SAYS

When a man starts to go to the devil he nearly always takes a woman along with him.

Twenty-five years ago if a man wore a silk hat in the day time everybody in town knew that he was a "Protessor" who demonstrated Electric Salve or Indian Sagwa and formed a pseudo behind him. But a man can wear one nowadays without starting anything.

In all the nasty mess of divorce scandals and affinity killings it certainly is a relief to see a husband and wife who are in love with each other. And there are a few of them left in the world.

A man can have a fine time telling what he intends to do. A woman can have a good time telling what she used to do.

Dressing for the Party

"Oh, say, mother, I don't want 'em manicured," protested the boy who was going to a party. "Shiny nails are awful easy. Why, Bill's never had his nails polished, and he said to me just yesterday that he'd never heard of anybody having to take a bath every day except me. I've asked every boy in this block and there ain't a single fellow who has to take a bath more'n once a week. Now I've got to take an extra one this afternoon on account of Maybelle's party!
Gee! I don't want to go to her old baby doll party."

"Say, mother, have I got to go?
Well, I think it's mean having parties on Saturday. I wish I was lame, so I couldn't dance, and then no girl would want me to her party. I don't see why the girls are always having parties."

"You say you're going to give me one to return all this hospitality! Oh, say, mother, please don't. I don't see what I've done that you're going to give me a party. If you only won't do it I'll be more careful about my English and I'll clean my nails and scrub my teeth every morning without your reminding me. I will, honestly. Why, if Bill knew I was going to have a party he'd say I was terrible."

"There's no use training me up for society, 'cause I'm going to be a gold miner. Bill knows about a mine out in Nome or Nevada that's awful rich.
There's old nuggets as big as foot-balls and he and me—I mean I and him—are going out there as soon as we're 18. There was one fellow who went out when he was only 15 going on 16, and now he's a millionaire."

"Well, anyway, if I do have to go to college first before I'm a miner, I'll be a athlete. No society for me, mother, so I don't see why I can't cut out parties and dancing school."

"That brown stuff on my hands? Oh, that's the mahogany stain Bill and me are going to put on my model aero-plane. I was just trying it. Ain't it a swell color? Of course, it won't come off easy or it wouldn't be any good.
Bill was coming over this afternoon to work on the aeroplane. He'll be awful sore when he finds out that you made me go to a party. Bill hasn't got any mother. She died when he was a kid a few days old. Of course, it was an awful sad loss to Bill, but he is real brave about it. He says his father wouldn't know if he didn't take a bath for a month. His father believes in letting Bill grow up independent and develop his own character, that's what he says. Oh, yes, Bill takes a bath real often. I didn't say he didn't."

"Oh, say, mother, do I have to wear them silk stockings and pumps? I hope Bill won't be anywhere around when I start to the party. I don't care if Aunt Julia did give 'em to me.
I'd rather she'd given me some leggings or a pair of ice skates. I've got to go to see Aunt Julia next Saturday! Say, mother, it's awful mean the way my Saturdays go. Bill and me—I mean I and Bill—ain't that right? Well, then, us—we were going to finish the aeroplane and make another model all by ourselves, and now if I've got to go to Aunt Julia's I don't know when I'll have time for anything."

"No, I haven't written to grandpa yet. Of course not. With all them parties and calls on Aunt Julia I don't have a minute to write letters. I guess if grandpa knew how my time was spent he wouldn't expect me to write to thank him for that jackknife.
Bill says it's a pretty good knife and he's going to get a man he knows to sharpen it for me. The man used to be his father's hired man when they kept a horse, before Bill was born, and he's such an old friend of the family that he'll do for nothing. So even if you don't think Bill is a good companion for me, you can see what a valuable friend he is."

"Oh, say, mother, I hate that sissy tie! Can't I wear my old dark blue jacket? No, I ain't chewing gum. I just happened to have a little in my mouth, but I wasn't chewing it. I never chew it since you told me not to the last time. But I've got a little on hand that I thought I ought to use up, so I just put it in my mouth once in a while."

"Lemme comb my hair myself, mother. I can part it straight. Say, did you hear that? That's Bill's whistle. Lemme go to the window and holler down that it's all off with the aeroplane work today, for I've got to go to a party."
"Say, mother, what do you think?
Bill's all dolled up in a lot of new clothes and he's going to Maybelle's party himself. Wouldn't that freeze you?"—Chicago Daily News.

THE RABBIT PERIL

People should be careful in regard to the rabbit proposition. It is said they are dying in great quantities. Health authorities are warning the people against using them as food. In fact, several cities are quarantined against them. It is claimed they inoculate the human being with diphtheria.

WAVED FAREWELL BY PROXY

After This, Who Shall Say English Business Man Is Not Full of Resources.

The other morning, as a departing transatlantic steamer was casting off its lines and swinging out into the stream, an elderly business man hastily embraced a lady who was one of the passengers, and rushed down the gang-plank to the wharf, says the London Answers.

Going hurriedly up to a melancholy loufer who was watching the busy crowd, the gentleman drew him behind a pile of baggage and said:

"Want to earn a shilling or two?"
"You bet I do."

"You see that lady in black on the bridge there?" said the elderly one.

"Certainly."

"Well, that's my wife going abroad Now, of course, she'll expect me to stand here for the next 20 minutes while the steamer is backing and filling in, waving my handkerchief and watching her out of sight. D'ye see?"

"I do, sir."

"Well, I'm too busy to humbug about here; stock to buy, biz to attend to.
She's a little near-sighted, so I'll just engage you to wave this handkerchief instead. It's a big one, with a red border, and as long as she sees it she'll think it's me. Come up to 209 Bangor street when they are well off, and I'll pay you."

"S'posin' she looks through a telescope, or something?"

"In that case you'll have to bury your face in the handkerchief and do the great weep act."

"That'll be extra payment."

"All right. Time is money. Look sharp, now. You can kiss your hand a few times at, say, a penny per kiss."

And closing his watch with a snap, the overdriven business man rushed off.

HISTORIC FIND IN PALESTINE

Chicagoan Reports Discovery of Floor of Church Dating From Third or Fourth Century.

Dr. George L. Robinson of the Mc-Cormick Theological seminary, who has returned to Chicago after a year's study of ruins in Palestine, reports the finding of an ancient mosaic floor one mile south of St. Nebo.

"The floor was discovered by an Arabian farmer who dug into the earth to build a foundation for a barn," he said. "The floor was in one of the early Christian churches and was built in the third or fourth century."

"Flowers, animals and Greek inscriptions are laid in most artistic manner. The mosaic is in a perfect state of preservation and looks as though it might have been laid yesterday."

As a result of his studies Doctor Robinson has come to the conclusion that the true Kadash of Moses and the Israelites is properly located at Alm Kadees. Doctor Robinson said he believed that the Catholics were correct in their contention that Zion is located on the southwestern hill of Jerusalem and that Calvary is under neath the church of the Holy Sepulcher.

American Invasion of Canada.

One hundred years ago an American force of 720 men, in command of Gen.
Duncan McArthur, penetrated 200 miles into Canada and captured numerous prisoners and large quantities of war supplies before beginning the return to Detroit. The raid was a part of a bold plan projected and partially accomplished by General McArthur with the object of conquering upper Canada, and the total success of which was prevented only by the failure of the forces of General Izard to co-operate with him. General McArthur was a distinguished soldier of the War of 1812 and at the time of his daring raid he was in command of the Army of the West. In later years, following the close of the war, he served as representative in congress and as governor of Ohio. His death occurred at his home near Chillicothe, O., in 1839.

For Study of Aeronautics.

There are already six great aerodynamical laboratories scattered throughout the world. The oldest of these is that directed by Doctor Riabchinsky, at Koutchikino, in Russia; next comes that of M. Eiffel in Paris, a private institution where this famous engineer has carried out research work of inestimable value for years past. Paris possesses another laboratory, planned on an ambitious scale, founded at St. Cyr through the generosity of M. Deutsch and controlled by the University of Paris. At Rome there exists a well-equipped laboratory belonging to the Italian aviation corps, and finally there is the admirable aeronautical section of the national physical laboratory at Ted-dington.

Steel Barrels for Russia.

One of the European orders which the war has sent to this country has been obtained by the Pressed Steel company of Sharon, Pa. It is from the Russian government, and is for 100,000 steel barrels for use in the Russian and Gallician oil regions, and the best part of it is that hundreds of thousands of these barrels are needed, and have hitherto been obtained in Germany. The Sharon company will run day and night for many weeks to fill this order, which, it is believed, will be followed by many more of the same sort, for Russia can hardly get the barrels from any other country.

HEROES DEVELOPED BY WAR

Terrible as is the Battlefield, It Brings to the Surface Man's Great Qualities.

Hateful as war is and utterly abhorrent to the Christian mind, we must yet recognize the fact that it brings to the surface as nothing else can certain heroic qualities in man that the whole world admires. And the great war has already been prolific of heroes. What is a hero? He is one who does his duty fearlessly, as he sees it, with all the energy, ability, power and enthusiasm at his command. At Liege a German officer, directing his men in the trenches, fell shot in the head.
At once the others came to him, eager to help. He waved his hand. "No, no," he said, "I have got my accounting forward—do your duty." And so died a hero. Prince Frederick of Lippe, leading his command, received a bullet in his breast. He knew it to be a mortal wound, but with his last ounce of strength he sprang forward, grasped the regimental standard, which was in danger of being taken, and shouting, "Save the flag!" fell to rise no more. Many incidents of individual heroism like these are told of both sides, and they relieve the sombre tragedy of war. Many undis-tinguished heroes went to their death at Namur, Charleroi and other battlefields in Belgium, and along the border from Mons to Muehlenberg, and at the great battle in Lorraine, where 300,000 fought on either side. The story is told of a number of students of Liege university who had volunteered for military service. There was an examination to be held, but a great battle had already begun. It was a first purpose to abandon the examination, but with a unanimous voice the students and faculty decided that it should go on. "The examination took place," relates the correspondent, "and then the candidates trooped from the hall to the battlefield, where many of them lay dead a few hours later."
—Christian Herald.

SECURED HER FREE TICKET

Clever Ruse Practiced by Los Angeles Woman to Get Transportation to Chicago.

A woman obtained a free ticket to Chicago yesterday by a novel method of extortion. She called one of the managers of a downtown department store to the telephone.

"I've got the smallpox," she said. "It doesn't show yet, but I have it. If I can get to Chicago I can get all the help I need, but if I stay here I shall have to go to the county pesthouse. I want you to send me a ticket to Chicago, and if you don't I'm coming to your store, get sick there, and you will have to quarantine the whole place."

Then she detailed her plan to escape detection. She demanded that the store manager should give the envelope containing the money or ticket to a messenger, the first messenger to give it to a second, who would meet the first at Sixth and Olive streets, and the second would give the envelope to a third at Fifteenth and Vermont avenues.

The department store notified the police and then consented to the woman's demands. The envelope was turned over to a messenger boy, who called. The police followed him to Sixth and Olive streets, where a second messenger awaited. They followed the second boy to the Vermont meeting place. The police were in an automobile. The third messenger had a motorcycle. He dashed up Vermont avenue, turned cross-town, and circled back, came into town, dashed through a congested crossing, and disappeared in the traffic while the police motor car was delayed at the crossing.—Los Angeles Times.

Virginia Only Producer of Rutile.

Virginia produced all the American output of rutile in 1913, according to the United States geological survey, the deposits being located at Roseland, Nelson county. During the year the company which controls and works these deposits produced 305 tons of rutile, valued at about forty-nine thousand dollars.

A large part of the rutile produced in 1913 was used in the manufacture of titanium carbide electrodes for arc lamps. A part of the ilmenite found in the deposits and separated by means of a magnetic separator has been sold for use in making electrodes for electric lights, and the experiments with the electric furnace point to the possible use of ilmenite in the direct production of tool steel.

Booth Tarkington's Long Climb.

Although Booth Tarkington, the Hoosier novelist, today is one of America's literary successes, he had a long and difficult climb to his present position. Mr. Tarkington himself is responsible for the statement that the financial rewards of the first five years of his literary endeavors amounted to just $22.50, or a little over four dollars per year. He refused to be discouraged, however, and now his income from serial rights and book royalties puts him up near the head of the street called Easy.

Getting Even With the Teutons.

A little boy in England, according to a letter received since the war began, has a peculiar brand of patriotism. He had heard his uncle complain because the government had solved his horses. "Yes," said the youngster, "and I hope they make sausage of them for the German soldiers."—Kansas City Star.
